INSPIRATION CORNER

Freedom Isn't Free

Five years have almost gone since that day.
Our soldiers have gone off to serve and fight,
Many of them — the ultimate price to pay.
If we're in the right place isn't black and white,
But I believe that is not for me or you to say.
We must be ready to stand for our country and fight.

The freedom that we have bought with the blood,
Of our soldiers in all the battles was not cheap,
And if we are to give any meaning to this flood,
We must honor it because we sow what we reap.
Disrespecting our leaders and their policies would,
Mean the disrespect of other countries we must keep.

Some Americans are standing up to be counted,
Because they're needed more today than ever.
Enemies may think we can be discounted,
But I see all across this great land ever
Since 911 we've taken every chance and shouted,
Americans are more patriotic than ever.

Every 4th of July, Memorial Day, Veteran's Day,
And Labor Day flags are flying everywhere,
And even when it isn't an official holiday,
The flags are still flying here and there,
Over business and homes our patriots say,
911 is not forgotten, there are some who care.

Maybe this means Americans have a chance.
The elusive Ben Laden, has been caught,
And some have stepped out and taken a stance.
They can say their freedom is paid for and bought.
It is time for the rest of us to get off the fence!
Freedom isn't free — the lesson to be taught.

A Hymn About the Battles of Lexington and Concord

By Ralph Waldo Emerson (1803 – 1882)

The Background

The following hymn was written in 1836 by the famous American poet, Ralph Waldo Emerson, for the dedication of a battle monument commemorating the men who gave their lives at the Battle of Lexington and Concord

Emerson's grandfather had fought in the battle, and his home was situated next to the bridge mentioned in the poem. The hymn was sung at the Fourth of July celebration in Concord in 1837. Emerson has since been credited with coining the phrase "the shot heard round the world."

The Hymn

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world.

The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conqueror silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept
Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream,
We set to-day a votive stone;
That memory may their deed redeem,
When, like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit, that made those heroes dare,
To die, and leave their children free,
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.
